

Rachel Platt

For over 20 years, Rachel has helped organizations and individuals achieve lasting success through strategic human resources leadership. She has a broad range of experiences in diverse corporate situations and has built her reputation based on her ability to develop pragmatic solutions to meet complex human resources challenges. Rachel creates relationships based on respect and a passion for challenging others to perform beyond expectations.

In 2018, Rachel founded PLATTinum Consulting to accelerate HR and human capital related projects in the areas of: leadership development, employee engagement, culture and inclusion, communications, talent acquisition, performance management, employee coaching and training. Rachel also serves as an external resource for several HR professionals to implement best practices in handling complex or sensitive employee situations.

Rachel has held HR leadership positions at organizations including CohnReznick, Time Warner, America Online, and MCI Telecommunications.

Rachel graduated with honors from the Goizueta Business School at Emory University. She has also attended Executive Education coursework at the Thunderbird School of Global Management. Rachel has been a certified Senior Professional in Human Resources (SPHR) since 2000 and she received her SHRM-SCP certification in 2015. She is an active member of the Society for Human Resource Management and the Inclusion Allies Coalition.
